Larry Weir: His Life and Works

written by Maria Weir Werth

San Diego's North County and other places that may surprise you, have adobe homes that were designed and or built by Larry Weir between 1955 and 1983. Larry Weir began to win his regional and statewide fame for adobe home construction as a partner of the Weir Bros. Construction Co. along with his brother, Jack, from 1951 until 1963, when Larry branched out on his own.

Explore this story of a man who loved adobe. Larry and Maria Weir's eldest daughter, Maria, spent three painstaking years matching photos in family archives with stories given to her from family, friends and some newly made acquaintances so that her father's story could be told. Maria Weir Werth has presented his legacy, not only in adobe construction, but also as a man who held his family and friends near and dear.
